

BALI ASLI LUNCH, COOKING SCHOOL, CULINARY ADVENTURES 2012/2013

STEP THROUGH THE LOOKING GLASS

“A day in the village”

Our trekking guide will take you “through the looking glass” up into the village of Pangi, where you will have the opportunity to peek into the daily life of the Balinese. As well as enjoying stunning views over rice fields, ocean and volcanoes you will see Balinese palm wine being made and bathe your feet in the springs of the valley of Tauke before wandering through the rice fields back to Bali Asli for a traditional Megibung lunch or to start your cooking class.

CAST A LINE AND CATCH YOUR LUNCH

“A day in the life of a Balinese fisherman”

Bapak Wayan our local fisherman from Bug-Bug village, will help you aboard his traditional style jukung out-rigger sailing boat and join the rest of the fishing fleet, in the crystal clear waters around the small islands just off Pasir Putih beach. But its not only about catching a fish, the view back to Mount Agung over the ocean is just as spectacular as the colourful display set by the sails of the boats. Return to Bali Asli for a traditional Megibung lunch or to start your cooking class.

MOUNTAIN-BIKING CULINARY ADVENTURE

The historical village of Budahkling nestled in the foothills of Mount Agung will be the starting point for your adventure. Glide along country lanes and down remote dirt tracks between rice fields, through jungle gazing over post card picture views and arriving at Bali Asli in time for your Balinese Megibung lunch or to start your cooking class.

PLOUGH WITH A COW OR PLANT SOME PADDIES

“A day in the life of a Balinese farmer”

Pak Dewa will take you on a tour of his village community garden, where you can join in on the daily activities as well as learn about traditional Balinese agricultural techniques and taste “Jamu” the Indonesian elixir of life. Sip home-made coffee in the shade of a papaya plantation, while Ibu Desak demonstrates how to make intricate woven palm leaf parcels that we will use as part of your Balinese cooking class. Return to Bali Asli for a traditional Megibung lunch or to start your cooking class.

TO MARKET TO MARKET TO BUY A FAT PIG!

“A day in the life of a Balinese lady”

Our chefs visit Amlapura morning market every day to gather the produce for our menu. Help carry the shopping! Sample some produce and absorb some real Balinese action in the hustle and bustle of the market. Return to Bali Asli and learn how to prepare traditional flower offerings, “canang” before cooking your lunch using traditional equipment and techniques.

All our adventures start at Bali Asli at 8.00am and finish after lunch

Please advise if there are any dietary requirements at time of booking. e.g. vegetarian, halal or allergies

Return transfers to Bali Asli can be organised on request and are chargeable depending on the pick up point.

For bookings or enquiries please email: enquiries@baliasli.com.au

Payment details and terms and conditions will be contained within your booking confirmation